3-Nation Truce Group In Laos

Government, Rebel Talks Still Stalled

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—A revived three-nation truce commission returned to Laos Monday with certification of the cease-fire between the Western-backed royal government and pro-Communist rebels as its first job.

The commissioners arrived as government truce negotiators were holding another fruitless session with a group representing the Communist Pathet Lao and Prince Souvanna Phouma in Hin Heup, 55 miles north of Vientiane.

Each side there accused the other of violating the cease-fire which was proclaimed last Wednesday, but there was no report of any wide military action. No agreement was reached on where cease-fire talks would be held and whether there would be separate political discussions.

Conference Requisite

Verification of the cease-fire is a Western condition for Western attendance at a projected 14-nation conference, due to open in Geneva Friday, on the future of the jungle kingdom.

Chairman Samar Sen of India flew in aboard a chartered plane with 20 other men—representatives of India, Canada and Communist Poland on the commission—from Saigon, South Viet Nam.

A similar commission group proceeded to Xieng Khouang, the rebel headquarters about 100 miles north of Vientiane, the administrative capital. There it is to deal with the Pathet Lao and with Prince Souvanna, professed neutralist, whom the Reds term the rightful premier of the government.

Withdrew In 1958

The three-nation truce commission, established under the Geneva Indochina settlement of 1954, is taking a hand in Laotian affairs again after a long absence. The group withdrew in 1958 by request of Laotian leaders who insisted its work was finished and accused the Polish members of spying.

Senior U.S., British and French diplomats worked in Oslo, Norway, site of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting, to produce a Laotian peace plan that would set up the kingdom as a united, independent and neutral state.

Foreign ministers of the Western Big Three all plan to be in Geneva Thursday. But they plan to take part in the conference Friday only upon receiving confirmation that the cease-fire is being respected.

Bigger Deficit Held Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Budget Director David E. Bell said Monday there is at least a 50-50 chance next year's budget deficit will be bigger than the $2.8 billion now forecast.

For this reason, Bell told the House Ways and Means Committee, Congress should resist temptation to approve tax changes which would cut revenues and add to the deficit.

Bell and Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg testified in support of President Kennedy's proposals to change several major sections of the tax law. Kennedy has said there would be no revenue loss if his entire package is approved.

Everett Hutchinson, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, opposed one part of the administration's program. Speaking for the commission, Hutchinson called for repeal of the 10 per cent excise tax on train, bus and airline passenger tickets. He said this tax, which Kennedy would continue, aggravates the mounting passenger deficit of the railroads.

Up Or Down, Rocket Rider Is Cool One

Spaceman Takes Accolades, Goofs By Others In Stride

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Up in outer space or down on solid earth Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. is a cool customer.

The first American to look down on his country from outer space had his chance Monday to look in on President Kennedy, Congress, a mammoth cheering crowd, and a mammoth news conference.

He turned out to be the calmest man in town.

Not only that, he managed also to strike just the right note.

Shepard was modest, constantly calling attention to those who had made the flight possible. He was forthright. And he had an easy grin that was hard to resist.

Curiously, the day's goofs—and there were quite a few of them—were all made by someone else.

President Drops Medal

Take the opening scene of this hero's welcome, in the rose garden of the White House.

First Kennedy dropped the special medal he was about to present to the astronaut. Then he just handed it to Shepard and Mrs. Kennedy had to remind her husband that on such occasions that the President actually pins the thing on the hero himself.

"Let me pin it on," Kennedy said. "I'll do my duty."

And he did. But you kind of got the idea, pleasant as it all was, that it was just as well the scientists and not the politicians were in charge last Friday, or we might still be tumbling around Cape Canaveral.

Well, then came the parade that wasn't officially a parade but was a rouser just the same. In this capital enthusiasm for parades often is whipped up methodically. Bands are ordered out. Marching squadrons are called on. Flags are run up.

Shepard's Bosses Bar Bands

There was none of this Monday, by order of Shepard's bosses.

And in one way it was too bad. Why is it those splendid military bands can show up to open the season for the Washington baseball team, which invariably goes down, and then aren't available for a man who has proved he can go far up?

But in another way it was nice that everything was left so simple.

From the moment the modest motorcade left the White House until it reached the Capitol, there was continuous applause, well over a mile of it, applause that usually is drowned out by the marching bands.

De Gaulle Renews His Offer To Algeria

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle Monday night renewed his offer of independence for Algeria in a speech that touched off a rowdy anti-government demonstration and two bomb explosions in Algiers.

De Gaulle spoke in a television and radio address that was broadcast simultaneously in Algeria. He called for a rebuilding of France toward its former grandeur and scorned the generals' revolt in Algeria as "odious and stupid."

Appalachian Governors Offered Kennedy's Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy offered a helping hand Monday to governors of the Appalachian states in their efforts to boost the economy of their mountain area.

Kennedy, after a luncheon meeting with the conference of eight governors headed by Gov. Bert Combs of Kentucky and including Gov. Tawes of Maryland, said he had directed that:

1. The Area Redevelopment Administration focus attention upon the opportunities—as well as the problems—of the Appalachian region.
2. The re-training program for workers be expanded.
3. The Defense Department review its policies with regard to the placement of contracts in areas of substantial unemployment.
4. A special liaison be established within the Area Redevelopment Administration to evaluate, and where possible, to put into effect, suggestions by the Conference of Appalachian Governors.

President Drops Astronaut's Medal

President Kennedy bends over to pick up the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Distinguished Service Medal which he dropped while presenting it yesterday to Astronaut Alan B. Shepard, Jr., left, at a White House Rose Garden ceremony. The President then said: "I'll pin you from

Prosecution's Papers Refute Eichmann Claim

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann was pictured in court Monday as the merciless director of a Nazi plan to uproot Jews all over Europe and ship them to death camps in the East.

Scolded by the three-judge court last week for introducing masses of evidence of Nazi terror without trying to show Eichmann's connection, the prosecution came in Monday with heaps of fresh documents.

Eichmann took notes furiously in his glass-enclosed dock as the prosecution presented letters and memoranda striking at his claim he was only obeying orders.

One letter showed Eichmann even told the Foreign Office what to do when Italy, a partner in the Axis, tried to free the Jewish wife of an Italian officer named Cozzi. She was held in Riga, Latvia.

"The Italian Embassy should be told to refrain from any further support of the Jewess Cozzi," Eichmann wrote the Foreign Office.

At the outset of the session, Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner said he was authorized to pledge immunity for former S. S. (Elite Guard) Col. Walter Huppenkothen and former Maj. Wilhelm Hoettl to come to Israel to testify for Eichmann. They are the first to be granted immunity of 10 the defense wants to come here to testify. But Hoettl said in Vienna he will not testify, at least not now.

Charged with crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against humanity, Eichmann was called "the man who directed and commanded the extermination action" that took six million Jewish lives in World War II.

The words were those of assistant prosecutor Gavriel Bach. He introduced cables, letters and memoranda signed by Eichmann. They were designed to show "that the chief of the Gestapo's Jewish Affairs Section had planned and carried out the deportation of Jews right down to decisions on how much each Jew should carry with him on the grim journey eastward."

One document, submitted by Bach, showed Eichmann meticulously figured out that there was room in one shipment of French Jews for 34 Jews of Yugoslav nationality who could be "shipped to Auschwitz amongst others."

Auschwitz was Nazi Germany's most infamous extermination center where about two million Jews perished.

Holmes Confirmed As Envoy To Iran

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate brushed aside opposition based on 14-year-old surplus ship deals Monday and confirmed Julius C. Holmes as ambassador to Iran.

The 63-17 vote came after Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, appealed for approval, saying the veteran career diplomat from Lawrence, Kan., will "make a great ambassador."

Allies Echo Rusk's Tough Berlin Stand

OSLO, Norway (AP)—America's allies promptly rallied Monday night behind a warning from Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to keep his hands off isolated West Berlin.

Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization from the Arctic to the Aegean one by one declared their resolve to resist any Soviet thrust against the position in the German city of the Americans, British and French.

The demonstration of solidarity came after Rusk, appearing in the 15-nation NATO Council for the first time, pledged to preserve Allied war-won rights in West Berlin and its approaches.

The display of NATO toughness was inspired by the Soviet premier himself. Khrushchev late last month sent word westward through German Ambassador Hans Kroll that he has not abandoned demands to internationalize Allied-occupied Berlin.

On this 16th anniversary of V-E Day, he told East German Communist leaders publicly he is sure this goal will be fulfilled soon.

As if to underline the resolve of the West, Rusk Monday night conferred privately with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany on the Berlin and German problems. They were getting together on terms of a West German note to Moscow broadly rejecting the Khrushchev plan.

A review of world affairs, with emphasis on East-West relations, occupied all of this opening day of the NATO Council's three-day strategy session in Norway's Storting (Parliament) Building.

Shepard, Family Relax At Base

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va. (AP)—Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., America's first man in space, landed here late Monday and planned a quiet evening with his family after a strenuous day in Washington.

A crowd of about 100 persons applauded as the two-engine plane carrying Shepard and his family touched down about 6:30 p.m. at this headquarters for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The applause became louder as Shepard and his wife stepped from the plane. Shepard smiled once, waved once, then climbed into a waiting station wagon with his family and headed for Dodd Hall on the base.

A spokesman for NASA said Shepard and his family would spend the night at Dodd Hall, quarters for visiting officers and guests.

Floods Spread In Middle West; Hundreds Flee

By The Associated Press

Tornado weather moved into the Ohio Valley Monday after a week-end of weather violence took 30 lives in twisters and floods.

The spreading of vast backwaters in the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio River basins drove hundreds from their homes and blocked highways as many sections caught a fifth day of heavy rains.

Buildoing tornadoes fatally injured 17 persons in eastern Oklahoma and one in Arkansas Friday night. Saturday, six drownings occurred in Ohio. Sunday, seven died in Arkansas twisters and floods. Approximately 100 were hurt by violent winds.

Damage was reckoned in the millions in the twister-hit communities of Midway, Whiteville, Clarkridge, Pindall, Summitt and Oil Trough, Ark.; at Howe and Reichert, Okla.; at Plano and Stamford, Tex., and at South Fork, Mo., during the weekend spate.

A flash flood hit Harrison, Ark., where two drowned, Sunday, flushing 14 feet of water through the business section. Clinton, Ill., where a deluge estimated at 6 inches hit early Monday, was also swept by several feet of water which rolled automobiles before it.

A dozen major highways were closed by floods in central and southern Illinois. Hundreds were forced from their homes.

At Browns, Ill., half of the 400 residents were evacuated when Bonpas Creek, a Wabash tributary, turned from a trickle into a muddy torrent.

Thousands of acres of Illinois and Indiana farmland in the Wabash River watershed were covered by murky lakes.

At Marion, Ill., some 70 residents more than 40 houses were taken to higher ground by state police and volunteer boatmen.

Streams were out of their banks Monday in Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas as well as Illinois and Indiana.

Wife "Thrilled" By Big Welcome Given Shepard

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pretty Louise Shepard predicted it would be a "big day," but the hero's welcome her astronaut husband got Monday was even more than she expected.

"Everyone turning out like that," she mused over the crowds of more than 250,000 that waved and cheered astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. and his family from the White House to the Capitol.

"It seemed so genuine—it was a thrill," said the slender, blue-eyed Mrs. Shepard, 34, who shared her husband's historic public pat on the back.

Shepard's father and mother, his sister, and his mother and father-in-law also joined in his big moment of acclaim.

And, Monday night, after the glare of the public spotlight they elected to spend a quiet evening together to talk it all over in the

Space Hero Cites Tasks Lying Ahead

Kennedy, Congress, Washington Throng Salute Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proud, grateful nation paid its fullest homage Monday to the first American to breach the barriers of space.

President Kennedy lauded astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. and pinned a medal on the man who ventured 115 miles into the heavens last Friday on a giant stride across the space frontier.

Congress praised Shepard with personal greetings and a formal resolution.

And from perhaps 250,000 ordinary folk jammed along the curbs, a warm, roaring, continuous salute rolled with the astronaut along historic Pennsylvania Avenue as he drove to the Capitol.

Humbly and modestly Shepard accepted the accolades. And almost from the first to the last moment of a day of glory he insisted on sharing every honor with the six fellow astronauts who were left behind during his flight and with the hundreds of scientists and artisans who put years of sweat and worry and brain power into the man-in-space program.

At his first full-fledged news conference since his exploit, Shepard put all the emphasis not on what he did but on what "we" did.

Felt Some Apprehension

There was emphasis, too, not only on the flight into space but on the challenges and tasks ahead of a nation still lagging behind the Soviet Union in some areas in space.

Shepard voiced pleasure and encouragement at the results of his journey into space and added: "We plan to press ahead with the best possible speed."

Yes, he said, he felt some apprehension ahead of time because there was always the possibility of partial success or even failure. He took a long look at the missile which lurked him aloft, he confessed, because he thought it might be the last time he would see it.

But on the flight itself: "I don't think we had any bad moments at all."

The five minutes of weightlessness he experienced was "quite a pleasant sensation," he said. He added there is "no difficulty in maneuvering ourselves, in controlling ourselves... and it has given us no difficulty at all."

Lift-Off Smooth

What were his feelings at the moment the rocket ignited? Shepard said there were so many technical things on his mind he didn't really assess his feelings. But he said he was surprised that the ignition and lift-off were as smooth as they were. He said he had expected "more noise and vibration."

As for the Soviet flight that sent Maj. Yuri Gagarin into an orbit around the earth, the Navy commander, now 37, said he preferred to make no comparisons.

An error in a transcription of the news conference caused some hours of confusion over whether Shepard said this nation could have achieved orbital flight before the Russians.

A reporter asked if the United States could have launched a sub-orbital flight—such as the one Shepard made—before Gagarin orbited the earth.

The astronaut heard the question correctly and said that this could have been done but those in control of the Mercury programs preferred to take no shortcuts which might have entailed unnecessary risks.

However, the transcript showed the question with the phrase "orbital flight." Thus it appeared that Shepard had said the Redstone rocket has orbital capabilities.

Relief Fund Bill Signed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy Monday signed legislation that channels federal relief funds to some of the nation's jobless for the first time since the depression of the 1930's.

The relief will be restricted to needy families with children and will be provided for the next 14 months. An estimated 500,000 children and 2,000 adults will benefit. The temporary program expected to cost the treasury about $200 million is aimed at alleviating suffering by children as a result of the economic recession.

Federal grants will be provided to states which participate in the

Tawes Signs Bill Upping Idle Pay, Tightening Rules

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Gov. Tawes signed into law Monday a bill that increases weekly jobless benefits from $35 to $38 and tightens requirements for receiving unemployment compensation.

The bill, strongly opposed by organized labor, was among some 45 measures which received the governor's action after passage by the recent session of the General Assembly. Tawes signed 26 measures and vetoed 19 others.

Another controversial bill signed Monday allows the state to tax federally owned property used by private industry. But the measure excludes property used by defense and shipbuilding firms.

In 1958 Maryland tried to tax such holdings. However, the Martin Co. is seeking to overturn the assessment in litigation pending before the Court of Appeals.

The state tax of three years ago would apply to the missile-manufacturers' Baltimore County plant.

The governor vetoed the House bill which would have given him the authority to name the director of the Tidewater Fisheries Department and remove one of Dr. H.C. Byrd's two hats.

Dr. Byrd has held the dual posts of commission chairman-director since June 1, 1959.

Tawes also turned down a measure which would have allowed him to name the chairman of the Board of Natural Resources from among the board's appointive members.

The unemployment compensation bill was the first to receive the governor's signature at the session, which cleared up all pending bills passed by the recent legislature.

Any bill not signed Monday would have become law at midnight Monday night under the statutes. The only measures not receiving action were two joint resolutions passed in the Senate. These did not require the governor's signature.

Nepal Peak Conquered

NEW DELHI (UPI) — An Indian team has made the first successful climb to the top of 24,858-foot Annapurna III mountain in Nepal, All-India radio reported Monday.

The radio said the team was led by Indian Army Lt. M.S. Kohli.

Up Or Down,

with his left to those on the other side.

Mrs. Shepard and her husband sat up on the back of the White Lincoln Continental convertible. Seated down in the middle, almost hidden, was Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

At the Capitol Shepard was presented to congressmen, and more showed up than one usually sees on the floor of the House or Senate.

The formal reception was in the old Supreme Court chamber, just a few steps down from the Senate. Although most of the senators were meeting Shepard and his fellow astronauts, the Senate dined on as usual. Neither time nor tide nor wind ever disturbs our beloved legislators.

The reception room was packed. "It's tighter in here," said Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., "than the capsule he was in."

But it didn't last long. Off again. This time to the State Department, and in such a rush an unbelievable thing happened.

Press association reporters were in the second convertible behind Shepard. As the caravan was moving out, two tanned young men raced up. Naturally we reporters tried to beat them off (Why does everybody try to get into the act?) until they identified themselves as astronauts who had lost their own car.

And that's how Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn and Air Force Capt. Donald Slayton got to their news conference, by hitchhiking in a press car.

Well, the conference began with a long commercial by James E. Webb, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Pretty soon Shepard took over. Rarely has anyone ever handled himself more competently before the press.

If the question had a hook in it, he gently but firmly removed it. If he didn't want to answer it, he didn't, and nothing could tease him into doing so.

If the question was scientific, he lapsed easily into scientific jargon that made it sound as if two Martians had just got together.

And if humor was needed, he tossed that off to, with a disarming smile.

Story Of Cuba Not Yet Ended, Kennedy Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy declared Monday that despite setbacks the story of Cuba "is not yet finally ended." He indicated it won't be as long as men want to be free and nations strive to be their own masters.

The President did not elaborate on his cryptic statement in an extemporaneous speech before the 39th annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB).

But he warned, as he has frequently in recent weeks, that the Communist nations will subject the free world to many more severe tests in the years ahead. And they will have at their command all the resources of a police state, he said.

In appearing before the broadcasters, the President took with him Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., who drew a thunderous ovation from the 5,000 in the Convention Hall. The President introduced Shepard as "the nation's No. 1 TV performer."

Kennedy also drew on Shepard's appearance to discuss the role free communications systems in a free society.

Referring to the astronaut's widely publicized flight, he said that "because we are a free society, we take our chances out in the open." What is more, he said, "I don't see how it is impossible to keep these matters private."

Space Hero

derstood the question and issued an explanation to that effect, making clear that orbital flight is beyond the Redstone's capabilities. Still later, the transcription was corrected to show that the original question dealt with suborbital flight and was correctly answered in the first place.

There were times, Shepard said, when the man in space program could have been rushed, but the decisions were against that because the program was an orderly one. "We felt that we had a well-laid out, well-designed, reliable program."

Throughout the day there was an undertone of sentiment that now America mustn't stop to pat itself on the back for the achievements of Shepard and the team that put a man in space. There was the feeling that the nation still has long and far to go, that redoubled efforts, as Kennedy has put it, still are necessary.

So there was a ban on pomp and splendors, on flags and bunting and bands and a carnival atmosphere of celebration.

Yet it was a day of great moments, and of moments of levity and poignancy and tenderness. It was shared by nearly every high official in government—Cabinet members, space agency officials, the White House staff, and the family that lives in the White House, from the President and Mrs. Kennedy to perky little Caroline Kennedy, 3.

Clad in a gay red coat and blue jeans, Caroline looked down from a balcony on all the goings on in her backyard, caught sight of her mother, and shrieked a joyful greeting: "Hey, mommy!"

There was a tender moment when Shepard and his fellow astronauts flew into nearby Andrews Air Force Base by jet from Grand Bahama Island off the Florida Coast. His family was waiting to see him for the first time since the epochal flight, and there was a kiss for his mother and for his pretty, completely charming wife, Louise.

Shepard Spacecraft May Go To Smithsonian

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Smithsonian in Washington, alongside capsules flown on previous Mercury missions, but nothing definite has been decided.

The capsule was returned here following Shepard's flight. The NASA spokesman said the capsule will be transferred to the Kennedy Space Center Monday for additional tests.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said there is a good possibility the spacecraft will go to be put on public view at Langley American home.

Mercenaries Begin Quitting Katanga Army

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—South African mercenaries began deserting the Katanga army Monday as the central government in Leopoldville laid plans for the trial of Katanga President Moise Tshombe on treason and murder charges.

A spokesman for the Katanga government accused the white troops of "deserting when the going got too tough." The mercenaries placed themselves under the protection of the United Nations and were expected to be flown to Leopoldville for questioning.

The charges against Tshombe include murdering Patrice Lumumba and slaughtering Baluba tribesmen. The white mercenaries led the attacks against the Balubas in northern Katanga Province.

In Leopoldville U.S. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was reported to have demanded the Congolese government punish the troops who cut down 42 U.N. soldiers at Port Francqui last month. The demand was given to President Joseph Kasavubu in Coquilhatville where Tshombe is held.

(The U.N. troops were shot up by Congolese soldiers April 27. The official toll is 42 missing and all are feared dead. Hammarskjöld said the guilty Congolese must be brought to trial.) Elisabethville itself was quiet despite reports Tshombe would be tried on charges that could bring the death penalty. Top officials appeared unworried.

V-E Day Passes Almost Unnoticed

LONDON (UPI)—The 16th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe passed almost unnoticed Monday in Western Europe. But in Moscow Marshal Semyon Timoshenko warned in an interview that the danger of a new world war has not past.

Sixteen years ago millions of Europeans danced in the streets, cheered and embraced to celebrate victory over the Germany of Adolf Hitler. The continent went mad with joy and the biggest crowd in history surged into London's Piccadilly Circus.

A spokesman for the British Legion said of the anniversary, "actually, we didn't realize Monday was the anniversary. You can say we've forgotten V-E Day."

Safecrackers Get Blame For $105,000 School Fire

CHAPEL OAKS, Md. (AP) — Investigators believe safecrackers accidentally started a fire which caused an estimated $105,000 in damages early Monday to Fairmont Heights High School at the northeast edge of Washington. Five firemen were injured in battling the blaze, which was confined to the principal's office, the administration office and a hallway at the school building. Classes were cancelled for the day.

Lawrence R. Woltz, Prince Georges County fire marshal, said two or more persons had broken into the school during the night and attempted to break open a safe. He speculated an acetylene torch being used in an attempt to open the safe got out of control and ignited the fire. The torch, still burning, was found on the floor of the flaming office when firemen arrived.

G. James Gholson, 48, school principal, said the safe contained only school records.

House Tour Includes 3 Cruises

Three cruises have been included this year in the Maryland House and Garden Pilgrimage. The first will be May 20 of the Severn River with a tour of the Naval Academy grounds and buildings. The other two, May 27 and May 28 will repeat last year's runs up the Chester River with a tour of Chestertown.

Visitors to the Naval Academy will learn much about its history and present layout, including the newly created athletic fields on 54 acres of new landfill along the waterfront. Bancroft Hall which contains the largest single dormitory in the world, besides numerous other departments, is the center of academy life. Also to be visited are Memorial Hall, the Museum, the Chapel and Crypt of John Paul Jones, all containing countless valuable naval relics, paintings and historic objects. The Superintendent's Gardens, noted for their beauty and design, will be open for the tour.

The Cruise up the Chester River presents a panorama of scenery, beautiful houses, and glimpses of the quiet domain of fishermen and water birds. From the boat one can see the famous mansions of many an old Colonial estate, including Bowling, Comegys Manor and Piney Grove. The boat will dock at Chestertown, for a guided tour of 4 of the old town houses and gardens, and the unique Custom House. Washington College is now the focal point of the quiet town, which was once one of the important shipping ports of Maryland, and birthplace of the noted artist, Charles Willson Peale. Along Water Street are concentrated a number of unusual pre-Revolutionary houses, once homes of wealthy 18th Century shipowners.

Hyson-Ringgold House, home of President and Mrs. Gibson of Washington College, built in 1735, contains the original paneling and a double antler-type stairway. Widehall, owned by Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, a brick Georgian mansion dating back to the early 18th Century, is considered one of the finest old Maryland houses, and is furnished with handsome antiques. River House, owned by Miss Marion Weeks, dates back before 1736. It was completed in 1850 and remains essentially the same today. An early owner, a wealthy Barbados merchant, evidently used the ground floor for offices, as the handsome rooms are on the floor above. The woodwork is intact, except for one room now at Winterthur. The wide cellar doors were probably designed to allow "Hogs Heads" to be wheeled through them. The early 18th Century old Custom House, possibly the oldest in America, is being authentically restored by the owner, Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard. Visitors are invited to enjoy the beautiful walled garden of Mrs. O. B. Burrell with its paths bordered by handsome old boxwood and colorful flowers.

The council decided to consider it as a project when meetings are resumed in September.

Speaking on genealogy, Miss Ruth Clauson, president of the Allegany County Historical Society, asked that anyone having material handed down from their ancestors to compile the background of life in Cumberland, during the Civil War, call her or leave it at the historical house. It is planned to publish it after it has been collected. She also announced plans to open the historical society house every Friday from 1 until 5 o'clock, for tours. At that time too the Civil War history information will be collected.

Chest X-Ray Unit Will Visit Keyser

KEYSER — The Mineral County Health Department announces that the next visit of the Mobile Chest X-ray unit to Keyser will be made the first week of June. Health officials explained that a germ, the tubercle bacillus, causes tuberculosis. Although it can strike anywhere in the body, the germ usually attacks the lungs. Good health and high resistance make it more difficult for tuberculosis to make headway and a chest X-ray once every one to two years will also help.

Anyone can contract this contagious disease. It is passed on by someone who already has tuberculosis. It is spread in many ways — by sneezes or coughs or by objects such as dishes.

Location, date, and time of the visit will be announced.

Extension phones go with bedrooms like sleep goes with night

A phone in your bedroom gives you convenience, privacy and peace of mind

You'll sleep better with a phone beside your bed — especially when the man of the house is out-of-town. You'll know that in any emergency the police, fire department, or your doctor are just an easy reach away.

And when you're upstairs, day or night, your bedroom phone saves steps. No more dashing downstairs when the phone rings. You'll have convenience in taking or making your calls — and privacy whenever you want it.

The beautiful, new Princess phone (shown above) makes a wonderful bedroom extension. It's so little you'll never miss the space it takes up on your night table. At night the dial glows softly, then lights up brightly when you lift the receiver.

You can have a Princess extension phone in your bedroom for just $1.90 a month, plus tax, after a small installation charge. (Your choice of five lovely Princess colors — white, beige, pink, blue or turquoise — at no extra cost.) Other extension phones cost only $1.15 a month, plus tax, after a small charge for installation and color.

Call your Telephone Business Office today. We'll be glad to help you pick out your new bedroom phone.

FSTC Fraternity Adopts Program Of Civic Aid

FROSTBURG—Hoping to initiate new traditions which will be beneficial not only to Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity and Frostburg State Teachers College campus, but also to the immediate community, 29 members of Beta Pi Chapter from the Frostburg campus traveled to Lonaconing recently to donate a measure of their blood to the National Red Cross through the Bloodmobile program.

This blood, besides helping the Red Cross reach its quota of 90 pints, will be used in hospitals and infirmaries across the nation.

This event is only one of many plans of the newly elected president, Marvin Vann, designed to stress a definite acceleration in organized and well executed large scale programs which can benefit the college students and residents of the community.

In an attempt to relate to the people the fact that Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity is an organization which stands ready to be of service to the Frostburg and Cumberland areas, Mr. Vann has appointed a public relations committee. It is the job of this committee to keep the students on campus informed as well as the residents of the community, so that in time of need it would be known in what areas men of Sigma Tau could be of assistance to the public.

Recently Sigma Tau Gamma announced its newly elected officers for the school term 1961-62. Marvin Vann is president; Harold Vance, vice president; Edward Root, recording secretary; Louis Schwarz, corresponding secretary; Gene Counihan, parliamentarian; James Graham, treasurer; Robert Erickson, chaplain; John Nussear, historian; George Kuhn, social director; and William Bruchey, social director. Most of the officers have at least two years left in the fraternity and are filled with spirit from president Vann's new enthusiasm.

City To Study Possible Additional Water Storage

An on-the-site study of the possibilities of additional water storage facilities in the Lake Gordon area will be undertaken by the Mayor and Council soon.

The tour was suggested by Water Commissioner G. Ray Light, at yesterday's meeting of the mayor and Council, in connection with a proposal for the construction of earth dams to hold back water above Lakes Koon and Gordon until it is needed.

Mr. Light, however, termed the installation of low-lift pumping facilities at Lake Gordon as "absolutely necessary" and said he would not even consider a suggestion for reusing water used to wash filters.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner, noted that Council several weeks ago approved a contract to have plans drawn for a low-lift pump at Lake Gordon and that before any money were spent she, as finance commissioner, thought it a "good idea" to explore the possibility of increasing our water storage.

Quered by Street Commissioner John J. Long, Mr. Light said the storage plan has been under study.

He said he wanted someone to take him to the dam and show him what could be done and where the water would come from to fill the additional storage space.

Mrs. Roeder said she thought the plan was worth looking into, adding there had been a number of suggestions, including the return of wash water used for cleaning filters which represents a sizeable loss of water.

Mr. Light agreed last night that quite a bit of water is lost in washing filters.

He rejected the plan, however, saying Cumberland is proud of the pure water supply it enjoys.

"Why pollute clean water," he queried, "with filth taken out of the water?" Such action, he added, would be only polluting the water supply.

He explained that the low-lift pumping facilities are needed in connection with the plan to repair Lake Gordon gate chamber, and to enable the city to use during emergencies a 50-day supply of water which will not flow into the filter plant by gravity.

Mr. Light said that if the pumping unit were not installed, it would be necessary to build a more expensive coffer dam for the gate house repairs.

Finn Leader In London

LONDON (AP)—President Urho Kekkonen of Finland arrived Monday for a five-day visit and talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Books By Kerr, Baruch Added To Library

New books, among them works by Jean Kerr and Bernard M. Baruch, have recently been added to the shelves of the local main branch of the Allegany County Library.

Miss Elizabeth Cain, assistant to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, says that Jean Kerr fans will be delighted with her latest book, "The Snake Has All The Lines," containing brand-new commentaries on various subjects with wit typical of the author.

Other books recommended by Miss Cain:

"Ruan" by Bryher (a gifted Englishwoman born Winifred Ellerman) is a novel of adventure in Cornwall, Ireland, and the Scilly Isles during the Sixth Century, recommended for those who have read and enjoyed "Roman Wall," "The Player's Boy" and "Gate to the Sea."

In "The Public Years," Bernard M. Baruch relates the fascinating story of the past half century. Beginning with his entry into public life, Mr. Baruch's memoirs include an account of his work as U. S. Representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, through which he presented this nation's plan for atomic control.

Outstanding among the recently added books is "Horseman, Blue and Gray." This pictorial history, with pictures selected by Hirst Millhollen and text by James R. Johnson and Alfred Bill, tells the story of both sides of the Civil War cavalry, from the first battle of Bull Run to Appomattox. Here are figures of the war brought to life by photographs and sketches many never before published.

Gladys Hasty Carroll's recently published novel "Come with Me Home" is a story of New England, its beauty, people and traditions. Miss Cain calls it well written and satisfying story with an unusual and lively cast of characters.

Sensabaugh $73,823 Bid Is Apparent Low

Orrie R. Sensabaugh, local contractor, yesterday submitted the apparent low bid of $73,823 for the relocation of a 36-inch water line along Route 40 in the Long Hill section.

His bid was one of seven which ranged up to $121,890 which were opened by the Mayor and Council.

The bids were referred to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum for tabulation and report. Listed in order of opening, they were:

Cumberland Contracting Company, $101,582; George F. Hazelwood Company, $96,600; Orrie R. Sensabaugh, $73,823; Wilson Construction Company, $75,418; Charles F. Smith and Son, Inc., Kennett Square, Pa., $121,890, and Baughman Contracting Company, LaVale, $87,525.

One of the bidders, the Cumberland Contracting Company, has been awarded a $941,430.15 contract by the State Roads Commission for rebuilding the section of Route 40 which necessitates the relocation of the water line.

After the Council session, the Mayor and Council, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and City Engineer Nuzum met to discuss the other costs the city will face in connection with the Cumberland Thruway.

The water line relocation is in connection with the Cumberland Thruway. Work will cover a distance of 2,257 feet and will include air relief valves, blow off valves, service taps and in addition, temporary and permanent auxiliary water lines will be provided. The contract would provide for the project to be completed in 115 working days.

In other bidding action, council accepted the bid of McClung Logan Equipment Company, Baltimore, for repair of a bulldozer at the city dump. Repair cost is listed at $940 and if necessary to furnish and install a master clutch, it provides for an additional $322.

The bid of Harris Pump and Supply Company in the amount of $1,200 for a sand-gravel pressure filter and $129.50 for a single proportioner chemical feed pump for the pool at Constitution Park was accepted.

A Fisher and Porter Company bid of $373 for a duplex chemical solution feeder for the park swimming pool also was accepted.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—The Cleveland Indians Monday sent outfielder Walter Bond to their Salt Lake City farm club on a 24-hour recall option.

The huge, but speedy outfielder was hitting .042 when ordered down for more seasoning.

The 24-year-old Bond was the team's spring hitting sensation for the past two years but once the regular season started he was ordered down.

Soil Service Adds Six New Cooperators

Six new district cooperators were signed up during April, according to Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist for U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

The new cooperators are Carl Wilhelm, 50 acres near Barrelville, John Carder, Oldtown, 50 acres woodland near Flintstone, Richard C. Aaron, Malampy Farm, 250 acres at Evitt's Creek, C. E. Sinclair, Hudenshield Orchard on Warrior Mountain, 343 acres, Alvin Wilson, 227 acres, Valley Road, former A. M. McElfish farm and John P. In April Mr. Gordon said Cumberland recorded seven snows and 23 days of rain with total rainfall 5.50 inches. Snowfall for the winter totaled 74.9 inches.

Twenty acres of contour strips were laid out for Earl Stonestreet, 12 acres for A. J. Miltenberger and 37 acres for W. C. Crabtree.

Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, reported 520 acres surveyed in Allegany district and 1,980 reserved.

The SCS district office showed slides and gave a talk to sixth grade pupils at Hill Street School in Frostburg; instructed two Fort Hill High School senior classes on soils and soil capability maps and furnished four conservation films for use at East Side School sixth grade classes.

A tile line survey was made for Alvin Wilson, waterway survey for Joseph Silber, spring development figures for E. M. Matthews and a spray water pond for C. E. Sinclair. Twenty-two follow-up contacts were made during the month.

Weather Bureau Predicts Floods In Nearby W. Va.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Heavy rain was predicted for Monday night and Tuesday in parts of northern West Virginia and weather observers said it might cause some local flooding.

A warning of severe thunderstorms was issued late Monday by the Pittsburgh Weather Bureau. It said as much as two inches of additional rain might fall in this region in a period of 12 to 24 hours.

In this event, an overflow of the West Fork River, by 1½ feet at Clarksburg and 3½ feet at Weston, was predicted. A Cheat River flood of 1½ feet at Parsons also was possible, the report said.

This undoubtedly would cause flooding of smaller streams, too. These often cause greater damage than overflow of large streams.

Thunderstorms were predicted for the period through Tuesday over the entire state, but forecasters said they probably would be less severe in southern West Virginia.

Temperatures soared into the 80s in many areas Monday. High humidity accompanied the temperature rise, making it the most sultry day of the year so far. Temperatures have been as high previously this spring but it didn't seem as hot because the humidity was lower.

School Building Bill Is Signed By Gov. Tawes

The $5,000,000 Allegany County school construction bill was signed into law yesterday afternoon by Governor Tawes.

Introduced as House Bill 807, it authorizes the Allegany County Commissioners to provide the funds for the school construction program.

Signing of the bill will allow the Allegany County Board of Education and the County Commissioners to proceed with plans for construction of seven projects.

Funds for the school projects can be raised through bond issues or borrowed from a state building fund.

Proposed by the school board are two junior highs for Cumberland, a six-room addition at Parkside, a new Frostburg elementary school, conversion of Beall Elementary to junior high school, changes at Beall High, and a six-room addition at Gephart.

It is expected that the first project on which action will be taken will be the Parkside addition. This rates a top priority by the school board because of crowded conditions and anticipated increased enrollment. It also requires a minimum amount of planning. The project has been estimated to cost about $130,000.

In advocating construction of two junior highs in Cumberland and the conversion at Frostburg, the school board cited overcrowding, separation of high school age groups and the desirability of offering an improved junior high as well as high school program as the reasons for the proposals.

Will CIA Undergo Major Shakeout?

Undoubtedly the super-secret U. S. Central Intelligence Agency is about to be overhauled. Whether it will be a radical overhaul, complete with new leadership, only the months ahead will reveal. Moves thus far announced are regarded in Washington as merely tentative.

There is a groundswell of criticism of U. S. intelligence failures in important international events which cannot be stilled short of an obvious improvement in intelligence capabilities.

Through the years, the CIA has been able to cloak its efficiency from all eyes but those of the President. Congress does not know how much of the Executive Branch budget is allocated to the CIA, or what the agency spends it for. There is no accounting of funds or activities except to the President.

Secrecy is a paramount requisite of the operation of any intelligence system, but it does not permit evaluation of the success or failure of the overall intelligence program. Within the year, three glaring failures directly attributable to the CIA have made serious dents in American prestige.

These were the U-2 plane fiasco, the tragedy of Cuba—which appears to have been consistently misinterpreted by the CIA, from the revolution of two years ago to the disastrous counter-revolutionary invasion — and the embarrassing complaints from Paris that CIA officials were in constant communication with the Algerian rebels during the brief threat to De Gaulle's rule.

Intelligence is one of the more important tactics of free world maneuvers to keep the cancer of Communism from spreading beyond its present borders. Bad judgment predicated on poor information has produced extreme embarrassments which could evolve into cold war defeats if not quickly corrected.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Is Difficult To Know

Recently General David Sarnoff discussed the problem of communicating scientific knowledge. Some comments were made on this subject in these writings and have received an interesting comment from a young scientist, part of which I give you:

"... I was very interested in your article on Dave Sarnoff's suggestion for an ideal clearing house; I thought of this idea several years ago but dismissed it as being too expensive. Nevertheless, the entire scientific community needs such a system imperatively. If competent, highly trained brainpower, is the nation's most valuable, and rarest, resource, it is surely a waste to have it spend its time thumbing through indexes in libraries. With the ever increasing flood of literature, a scientist can spend more time doing paper research than the lab research he's paid for. If, while looking through his microscope, he sees a green spot in a cell, he ought to be able to dial 'green spot' into a computer and be supplied within a minute with a bibliography covering everything that has ever been written on the subject of green spots. Then he will have time to do his work.

"The problem, however, doesn't end here. At the present, the only way a new fact or theory can be given circulation is through the professional journals. At one time when little work was being done in the sciences, the journals were adequate for the task. Today, however, with tens of thousands of laboratories cranking out endless rivers of data, the trade papers can't possibly do their job. Some of the better ones are publishing material submitted as far back as three years with the backlog growing each month.

"Even more appalling, important contributions are being published in little known periodicals which no one reads simply because the line is too long at the bigger journals. These important works often pass completely without notice only to be rediscovered much later by duplicated effort which could have been avoided by such an institution as Sarnoff's clearing house.

"The worst problem, though, is the politics of getting published. Many scientists rush into print to save their university positions. Others wear publications like a general wears his ribbons, and crowd the journals at the expense of better work by newcomers. On the other hand, many young men will fight to get published just to get a better initial job, even if their theses aren't of sufficient scope to interest an entire profession. These and other abuses pervert many periodicals from their proper purposes thus making them even less efficient means of transmitting scientific advancements."

Young men come straight to the point because they have nothing to lose but their youth. Excellent thinking is done by young scholars, even in the social sciences. This material is likely to be in the scholarly journals which have very small circulations and are often passed over unnoticed for years, until some popularizer brings them to the fore in a newspaper or magazine article.

One of the misfortunes of the professional writer is that he is often too verbose to be interesting, too bogged down in the jargon of his discipline, as he calls his profession, to be readable. He writes for a handful of colleagues who will praise him and for a faculty which will vote him a full professorship. But his impact upon his community and his time is nil.

I do not read many scientific journals because some of those subjects are closed to me, but I do read many learned journals in fields with which I am familiar and take ideas from them and often quote from them. But I must admit that much of it is hard to pin down. The academician is fearful lest he be suspected of being a layman; therefore he writes in a style which will make him sound like a translation from the German. That was not true of an earlier generation of learned men, such as Charles A. Beard, James Harvey Robinson, John R. Commons, or even Woodrow Wilson who, having something to say, said it.

And they used fewer footnotes to sustain them. So often an article in a learned journal is encumbered with footnotes to prove that the writer really has no original ideas—that everything was taken from someone else. This is not done to establish modesty; it is rather a crutch to sustain the thinker and to prove that someone else once thought the same way, proving ipso facto that great minds travel on the same road.

'Who Needs Spies?'

Internal Explosion Possibility In Red China

By Joseph Alsop

Some weeks ago, after studying the underground war in South Vietnam, this reporter passed a week in Hong Kong collecting the best available evidence—the evidence of recent refugees—about the mysterious evolution of Communist China. The resulting reports from Hong Kong were pushed aside, however, by the pressure of events in Cuba and Algeria.

Yet the Hong Kong evidence is not merely sensationally horrible. More significantly, this evidence indicates the clear possibility of an internal explosion which could destroy or radically alter the Chinese Communist government. Hence the Hong Kong series seems worthy of belated publication. This is the first in the series.

HONG KONG

The articles which begin here with mainly concern a crime almost past imagining, which is being perpetrated upon the Chinese masses by their Communist masters. In the simplest moral terms, the Chinese people are now being offered as a blood sacrifice on the altar of the new Mammon of our times, industrial power.

But in hard political terms, the chief interest of this crime lies in the enormous political risks which it involves. For the sake of forced industrialization, the Communist masters of China are now gambling their regime's future. Although this view will seem wildly eccentric to the more fashionable analysts, it is quite possible that the Communists will lose their gamble. Oddly enough, the best proof that this view is not eccentric is to be found in the following passages from the official Communist "Outline History of China."

"In the year 209 B. C. a group of 900 conscripts on their way to the frontier for guard duties... killed the officer in command and revolted... These were the first to raise the cry for the overthrow of the Chin empire..."

"In less than a month their army had grown to more than 1000 cavalry and several tens of thousands of infantry and owned some 700 war chariots. Inspired by their uprising, peasants all over the country took up arms."

The official history goes on to describe how the power of the Chin empire effectively collapsed, almost within a matter of weeks, after this sudden, desperate strike in a chain gang of wretched peasant conscripts. As explanation for this astonishing collapse, the official history also approvingly quotes an ancient author, as follows:

"The more powerful the armies of Chin grew, the more its enemies multiplied. The government was too harsh towards the people and punishment was too severe."

The lessons of the past are supposed to be utterly outmoded nowadays. Yet anyone who reflects upon the real meaning of the foregoing quotations will understand why the crime the Chinese Communists are now perpetrating is also a perilous gamble. It is a gamble in their own terms, moreover. The harshness of the Chin government towards the people was as nothing—it was the merest milk and water stuff—compared with the present harshness of the Chinese Communists.

Assuming the harshness as a fact for the moment, what are the other reasons why the foregoing quotations have so much current meaning? The first and simplest reason is the inherent proof that even the most awe-inspiring facade of monolithic authority can be remarkably deceptive.

The Chin government was founded by a ruthlessly totalitarian power originally based in north-

Most Tragic Intelligence Error Involved Castro's Air Strength

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson has been writing a series of diagnoses into what went wrong in Cuba. This is the third column in his series.

WASHINGTON—When the invasion strategy of the Cuban freedom fighters was being planned, the Bay of the Pigs was selected as the landing spot because it was surrounded by a swamp.

Three roads penetrated that swamp. However, the strategy was to mine these roads against the advance of Castro's tanks. Then the Cuban rebels could hold out in the swamp and on the beach long enough to rouse the Cuban people to revolt.

The plan, officially labeled "Operation Pluto," was ok'd by the Joint Chiefs of Staff as entirely workable. In fact, they informed President Kennedy that it had a better chance of success than the CIA operation which overthrew the pro-Communist Arbenz Regime in Guatemala.

However, success of the plan depended not only on mining the three roads against tanks, but on knocking out Castro's planes.

As reported in an earlier column, all the rebels' aviation gas, tank mines, and anti-tank shells were loaded on the SS Rio Escondido, a slow-moving Liberty ship which developed engine trouble, was able to make only four knots an hour, so was sent on in advance of the other vessels.

Arriving off the Bay of the Pigs, the Escondido was bombed by one of Castro's planes. It suffered almost a direct hit, and all the gasoline, tank mines, and anti-tank shells sank to the bottom of the Bay of the Pigs.

This made it impossible to mine the roads against Castro's tanks, also destroyed the anti-tank shells to combat them.

Castro's Surprise Planes

On top of this, Castro's planes swooped down on the beach. These were British sea furies and American T-33 jet trainers, previously sold to Batista and inherited by Castro.

This was a surprise. Because Castro's planes were supposed to have been knocked out by a rebel raid over Havana on April 15 the Saturday prior to the invasion on Monday, April 17. The rebels had 18 planes in their air force, of which eight participated in this raid. They returned with reports and photographs showing Castro's air force destroyed.

This was the worst intelligence error. The CIA which was supposed to know the whereabouts of Castro's entire air force had failed to report that Castro had scattered other planes at various bases around the island.

It was these planes which turned up over the rebel beachhead, sank the Escondido, and turned the beach into a booby trap. The freedom fighters had to take to the swamp.

On the second day of fighting, the rebel beach commander, Roberto San Roman, pleaded over his walkie-talkie for American planes.

The U. S. destroyers and air- plane carrier standing offshore were mute. They had orders not to intervene.

Finally, early on the morning of April 19, Central Intelligence officers got President Kennedy out of bed and a 3 a. m. meeting was held in the White House.

Some Kennedy advisers urged that American planes be ordered into battle. It was not an easy decision to make. Just three hours before, at the United Nations, Adlai Stevenson had been the laughing stock of many delegates when he gave the word of President Kennedy that American armed forces were not involved. No one believed him, but what he said was true up to that point. The UN debate ended around midnight.

Navy Shot Wrong Plane

At the White House conference, three hours later, Kennedy finally ordered American planes into action in a last-minute effort to save the rebels from collapse.

But when Navy planes finally got off their nearby carrier, their only contribution to freedom was to help Castro. They shot down a rebel B-26.

The rebel planes had the same markings as Castro's planes except for a blue streak underneath the wing. The Navy pilot couldn't see beneath the wing, destroyed the rebel B-26.

By this time the battle was over. Kennedy's last-minute orders had been delayed by a snafu of the Navy's radio but probably would have been too late anyway. The United States, rebuffed by a 33-year-old bearded rabble-rouser, suffered one of its greatest defeats.

Since that defeat there have been reports that Secretary of State Rusk, together with Under Secretary Bowles and Adlai Stevenson, had vetoed the use of U. S. fighter planes between the April 15 air raid over Havana and the start of the invasion April 17.

The Joint Chiefs did come forward at the last minute with a proposal to use U. S. planes, but the President ruled that they were changing the signals too late, that their original strategy provided for no American participation. He ruled it out. Stevenson was not consulted. Chester Bowles filed a memo opposing the entire operation from the first, but there is no evidence it was given to Kennedy.

Rusk has testified behind the closed doors of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he approved the invasion plan. His aides say he did so reluctantly.

After the debacle, the Joint Chiefs of Staff leaked denials that they had given their approval. But their chief, Secretary of Defense McNamara, went out of his way to tell newsmen just the opposite.

Tomorrow What?

By John Crosby

The homogenization of the world is proceeding apace, alas, alas. Spain, I read in "Variety," is outlawing its ancient working and sleeping hours to bring them into tune with the rest of the civilized world. In Spain, as everyone knows, one dines at 11 p. m. after a good long siesta and then stays up half the night.

Not after June. By government decree, film houses and theaters, which have been operating two performances a night, one starting at 7 p. m. and the other at 11, must turn out the lights by 11:30 from October to May and half an hour later between June and September. "Time-worn habits that have made the country unique for late-hour dining and diversion will go out the window in a sweeping government move to establish a working and playing day that compares with the rest of civilized society, come what may."

"The decree is not limited to show business, but lists working hours for all industry, commerce, and public services. The general idea of this extreme official discard of social usage is to get the Spaniard to work on time by getting him into bed as close to the witching hour as possible... Will Spaniards accept a timetable for dinner at 8 or 9? Or will entertainment be sacrificed for the leisure of a two-hour supper that for centuries has always started at 10 p. m. or later?"

And why does Spain have to get to bed at the same hour as the rest of the world? I recall seeing little children still up snapping their castanets at 5 a. m. during the fair at Seville. Their normal bedtime was something sensible like 1 a. m., but since it was fair time they were allowed a few hours extra. Charming custom.

Of course, you can't reasonably blame the reform—if reform is the word for it—on Americans. Practically nobody else had hours like the Spaniards either. But I'll bet we do get blamed for it. It wasn't until the Americans got bases in Spain that the Spaniard started tampering with their ancient customs.

The French now have put bowling alleys in the Bois de Boulogne. They have a Drugstore (known simply as Le Drugstore) on the Champs Elysees. The Italians have our quick lunch. So have the French. Now the Spaniards are going to bed before midnight. Well, at least the government is trying to push it down their throats. It may bring on another revolution.

Where will it all end. As Nancy Mitford points out in her book, "Don't Tell Alfred," it was not so long ago—not more than thirty years which is just an eyeblink in recorded time—when every nation had its own costume, its own architecture, and its own food, all distinctive and unique. Today the sun never sets on Coca-Cola or the cigarbox modern architecture or neckties and nylon.

Tomorrow what? I can close my eyes and see the Congo looking like the Moshulu Parkway with palm trees fringed by hot dog stands. Drugstores at the corners selling Vance Packard's "The Wastemakers," and practicing it all over the rest of the store.

I suppose it's inevitable that the rest of the world should pick up our bad habits. But why don't we pick up some of theirs?

If Spain is going Spanish, why don't we go Spanish? I think America should adopt the siesta which is one of the more civilized habits of the world. In fact, apart from Americans and the English, I can't think of any peoples who don't enjoy siestas. No other animal stays up sixteen solid hours without dozing off? Why should we?

I think we ought to lock up Macy's for a couple hours after lunch, pull the shades, and every one cork off for a couple hours. It'd improve the disposition and put us all in tune for a nice late dinner. Say at 10 p. m.

CASTRO'S NUMBER UP—Fidel

Castro's days as the Cuban leader are numbered. The word in highest government circles in Washington is that Castro has made the mistake of making himself the principal symbol of opposition to the United States in the Western Hemisphere and has thereby made the issue survival of himself or of the federal administration in Washington.

Castro could have survived in Cuba as a mild irritant off the coast of the United States. He cannot endure in the role he has chosen—the focal point of Soviet Communist efforts to penetrate the Americas.

President John F. Kennedy has held a series of conferences with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former President Harry S. Truman, GOP presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon, and Nixon's principal rival in the Republican Party, New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Before conferring with them, Kennedy conducted soul-searching examinations within his own administration to determine how the United States went so wrong in its decision to back the Cuban rebels, and what could be done to retrieve the massive loss of prestige suffered by the U.S. when the effort failed.

Little is being said about these meetings, but it is obvious to knowledgeable insiders that Kennedy would not have gone to all this effort merely to assess a past occurrence. There is a firm conviction that Kennedy sought political unity in a course of action that he has mapped out either to topple the Castro regime or bring it into line with the security needs of the other Western Hemisphere nations.

Kennedy already has taken steps to intensify the economic squeeze on Cuba. In the weeks and months ahead, he is expected to bring all the persuasion at his command to make that squeeze to bring all the persuasion at his command to make that squeeze hemisphere-wide. One way or another, Castro must go, for as long as he exists he will be a reminder of a basic failing of U.S. policy. And this, Kennedy is determined to erase.

Gout May Attack Muscles As Well As Joints

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most of our readers would suspect gout if a big toe suddenly became red, swollen, and so tender they could not walk. If they didn't suspect it, they might when the condition disappeared and returned several weeks or months later. This is the nature of gout; it tends to strike at night without warning and, unless treated, attacks will come and go.

Gout may affect joints other than those of the toes and the diagnosis is likely to be missed should this occur. Backache, for example, may be blamed on lumbago, arthritis, or a slipped disc. The possibility of gout is somewhat remote yet occasionally backache is traced to this disease. Furthermore, when the proper remedy is used, pain subsides promptly.

Nine cases of irregular gout were reported recently by Dr. Herman Pepper and Dr. Louis Mann of Redwood City, Cal. These patients complained only of recurring attacks of dull aching pain in both calves and thighs. This type is more unusual than gout of the spine and the majority were bothered for years before the true nature of the disorder was detected. It had been dubbed, neuritis, muscular rheumatism, and what not.

The discomfort was aggravated by walking and standing. Each bout lasted two or three weeks. In these cases, gout did not involve a joint. It settled in the muscles.

All these men and women improved dramatically following the use of colchicine. This drug is a specific remedy for the acute stage of gout. The sufferers also were given probenecid to prevent recurrences.

Gout is not difficult to diagnose, provided it is kept in mind whenever pain in and about joints develops. A simple blood test and X-rays will settle the question.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A Vermont farmer trusted his 20-year-old son in Boston alone for the first time. The lad arrived home two days later with an empty wallet but a look of utter bliss. "What delayed you?" demanded the alarmed farmer. "Paw," replied the lad, "I met a red-headed girl just before I was going to climb on the bus for home two days ago, and I don't know what you call it, Paw, but from now on that's my hobby!"

This week's prize "overheard" is submitted by Polly Kahn. A visitor from the South was showing his young son the sights of mid-Manhattan. The boy pointed to St. Patrick's Cathedral and asked, "What's that building, Pa?" The father unhesitatingly replied, "Son, that is New York City's Baptist church!"

Mike Connolly cites a Hollywood

star who knew instinctively how to behave when invited to the Flower Show. He got potted. Mike has also discovered the one way to keep a couple of jumps ahead of his wife. He plays checkers with her.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Steve McQueen, who has been attracting big attention for almost two years, hits the star bracket in "The War and the Lover" and the executive who has tabbed Steve for his first leap into stardom is Sam Briskin, of Columbia. It's Steve's first time on the Columbia lot—but you can bet it won't be his last.

"War Lover" is an important project written by Pulitzer Prize novelist John Hersey and it will be under the guiding production hand of Arthur Hornblow, Jr. Philip Leacock is the director and he has "Hand in Hand" and "The Little Kidnappers" to his directing credits.

Steve plays an American bomber pilot of World War II who glories in the dangers against the Germans and leads his squadron into hair-raising experiences. Right up the street of the devil-may-care Mr. McQueen.

While Sir Alec Guinness has been in town, he has had a number of conversations with George Stevens about playing the dual role of Herod the Great—king of Palestine at the time Jesus was born—and of his son, Herod Antipas, who reigned at the time of the trial and the crucifixion, in "The Greatest Story Ever Told" at 20th.

Guinness' twin roles of father and son would span the entire story from the nativity to the end. It was Antipas who beheaded John the Baptist. Sir Alec has expressed a desire to do the movie.

Ina Balin arrived in town Sunday for wardrobe fittings on "Comanchero" starring John Wayne—oddly enough, this is only the second picture Ina has made for 20th Century Fox which holds a seven year contract with her.

The pact was made over a year ago when Ina did "On the Terrace" and for some reason or other 20th didn't come up with another movie for her until now. She went back to New York where she did TV and also the "Young Doctors" movie on loan-out. "Comanchero" starts shooting June 7th and takes Ina out of town again on a long location shooting schedule.

Had dinner with Jane Wayne and Freddie Karger at Chasen's before Freddie left for the star on the roof to play his dance music. Jane and I had a long talk. She told me she leaves August 10th for Europe to star in "Bon Voyage" for Walt Disney. "I am going to stop in Washington, D.C. to see my daughter Maureen. I haven't met her husband John Paul Philliponi yet. Maureen tells me she's very happy and says she's a good cook. This I will have to see," laughed Jane. "Freddie has a date to open a musical in London this fall, and I'm trying to get him to leave when I do, but that may be impossible. However, I will join him later."

The complaint of Dolores Hart to Philip Barry at Columbia that she only gets to play good girls in pictures may result in one of the brightest spots in "Sail a Crooked Ship" the Bob Wagner movie. Phil has written in a cameo sequence in which Dolores does a satirical takeoff on Brigitte Bardot.

Dolores won't be wearing too many clothes but she will have plenty of hair framing her face, according to the makeup session they had for the movie. Some way, you can't think of this fresh scrubbed all American type beauty playing the sex kitten.

Bridge Tourney Winners Listed

A Baltimore team won the open pair championship of the eleventh annual sectional tournament of the Western Maryland Bridge Club, held over the weekend at the Cumberland Country Club.

Winners of the tournament's top event were Robert Rivkin and Sanford Schwartz.

Runners-up were Robert Stafford, this city, who was teamed with a nephew, Chester Stafford Jr., Pearisburg, Va., and James Preaskorn, city, and Marjorie Sellers, Altoona, Pa.

The top score in the qualifying round for the open pair event was posted by Louis Stuckey and Mark Laken, Baltimore. Laken last year teamed with Richard Walsh, New York City, to win the open pair championship.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blair, Altoona, teamed to win two events. The couple won the special pair event, a consolation game for those who failed to qualify for the top event, and then finished on top in the mixed pair play yesterday, the concluding event in the tournament.

Cumberland players won both the men's and women's pairs championships.

C. William Dailey and William A. Douglas posted the top score in the men's play, while Mrs. William Snyder and Mrs. Ralph Nevy successfully defended the women's pair title they won last year.

Council Orders Limit On Taxis

An order introduced by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and approved by the Mayor and Council yesterday limits the number of taxicabs operating in the city to 68.

Under the order, the Mayor and Council can increase or decrease the number.

Fleming also announced that under terms of the order, four vacancies for certificates of convenience existed and he moved that three on file be granted.

Council approved certificates for Clarence H. McCarty, Lon Cook and Richard Laudenburger.

City To Build Garage

Street Commissioner John J. Long was authorized by the Mayor and Council yesterday to advertise for bids for construction of a garage at the sewage treatment plant.

Valentine Hired

Raymond R. Valentine Jr., was employed as a probationary chairman in the Engineering Department by the Mayor and Council yesterday. The appointment is effective May 15.

ABL Visitors To Get Tour Of Facilities

Visitors at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory's 15th anniversary celebration on May 20-21 will be taken on a "fairytale" tour into the mysteries of rocketry and outer space.

They will see what causes smoke and rumbling sounds which are heard by nearby communities and will get a close-up look at rockets developed at ABL, such as the famed X-248 Altair and its "big brother," the X-254 Antares.

At the machine shop, they will be shown machine operators performing about every known type of shop operation, such as machining, grinding, planing, drilling and boring. The shop can machine pieces of metal up to 20 feet in length and eight feet in diameter.

It can produce machined parts with mirror-like finishes having the precision of a fine wristwatch. At the chemistry laboratory, guests will be taken through one of the many laboratories that are used to perform highly-specialized studies. For example, some of ABL's research lab contains mechanical handling arms which allow technicians to mix hazardous ingredients remotely by using controls in an adjacent room.

Some of the labs conduct studies to determine the strength of propellant samples. ABL recently obtained a mass spectrometer which can automatically analyze certain liquids and gases and this also will be seen by guests.

Probably the most interesting part of the tour will be the range area where ABL statistically tests medium and large-size rocket motors. Guests will be shown, among other test facilities, the largest and most-recently built static test firing bay for rockets.

Used primarily to test large rockets such as the Polaris, the bay was two-foot thick reinforced concrete walls with a forward wall against which the rocket pushes. It is 10-feet thick and will withstand a million pounds of force, scientists claim.

At ABL's smallest and oldest test bay, visitors will see where the plant test-fires units weighing up to 100 pounds. Its purpose is to provide extremely accurate measurements of thrust, made available when the propellant burns in a rocket motor.

In the bay will be ABL's rocket motor Altair, which has placed many of our nation's satellites in orbit.

Another interesting highlight of the plant tour will be the ballistic centrifuge—the largest known in the free world. It is used to spin rockets while they are being fired to duplicate the forces on a rocket motor during flight.

Scientists must know these flight conditions to determine if ABL propellant charges and rocket parts will function properly during an actual flight test.

The centrifuge is rotated by a 500-horsepower Diesel engine located in an adjoining building, capable of testing rockets weighing up to 2½ tons and which it can rotate at speeds up to 80 revolutions a minute.

This may seem slow, but at the end of the boom it is traveling about 120 miles an hour. A rocket on the end of the boom would be subjected to a force 50 times its weight, it is claimed.

A visit to the pilot plant, structures laboratory and missile display will conclude the tour, lasting approximately 80 to 90 minutes.

Plant officials said the tour will be by invitation only, explaining that each employee will be given four tickets which may be distributed to members of the family, or to friends.

In order to avoid congestion, it was stated that the tickets will be colored, with each color indicative of the time the tours will start.

The tours will start at 10 a.m. on May 20, and at 9 a.m. on the following day. They will conclude at 6:30 p.m. each day, ABL spokesmen said.

City Approves Phone Call Law

The Mayor and Council yesterday unanimously approved an ordinance to make unlawful the use of telephone facilities for calls intended to annoy, abuse or embarrass.

It also covers repeated calls and any comment, request or suggestion which is obscene, lewd or indecent.

The ordinance provides a fine of not less than $25 and a maximum of $500 or in default, 10 days in jail.

1,284 Arrests Made

The Police Department made 1,284 arrests and fines amounting to $3,521.45 were assessed last month, a report by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming revealed yesterday. The Fire Department was called 42 times. Damage was minor.

So many prominent women past forty stay remarkably young. How do they do it?

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Outlook And Diet Care Help Keep You Young

How do they do it, these women past forty who are slim and fashionable and the most interesting women of our day—the stand-out actresses, business executives and political leaders, and so many others? How do they always manage to seem younger than their years?

Certainly they have an alert attitude toward life which keeps them young in heart. And they may have learned to be very knowing in beauty care ways. But if you could be with them constantly I'm sure you'd discover another reason—that their intelligent approach to living prompts them to eat properly every day.

With correct eating habits, no weight problem arises, and extra rewards are continuing verve and radiance, those truest attributes of youth. These three rules are your best over-all guide:

1. Eat less of the energy foods, the starches and sugars, because they are fuel that can't be used in quantity now you're less active than in earlier years. Excess means extra weight and lethargic feeling.

2. Consume plenty of high vitamin and mineral foods, milk, fruits and vegetables, for live good looks of skin and hair.

3. Make sure of daily requirement of proteins, with lean meats, cheese and eggs, for renewal of tissue. Ask your doctor if you will benefit by following a high protein diet.

Sen. Butler Warns Of FCC TV Policies

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., said Monday policies of the Federal Communication System could produce government control of television programming if carried to excess.

Butler, in his weekly newsletter mailed from Washington and received here, said directives by the FCC were consistent with federal law but laid heavy emphasis on public events, education and news programs.

"Station owners understand," he said, "that the New Frontiersmen on the FCC will not be overly sympathetic to their request to stay on the air unless that include what the commission considers 'enough' public service programming."

Council Approves Street Ticket Sale

The Mayor and Council yesterday granted the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce permission to sell tickets for its "Bandorama" on Baltimore Street this week.

The "Bandorama" will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Fort Hill High School Stadium and attract leading drum and bugle corps from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming told council today that this is "something new" for the city. He said he has seen similar events, it is "a good show and everybody should see it."

Driver Uninjured In Unusual Accident

A Keyser area teenager escaped injury Saturday night in an unusual accident within the town limits of Keyser.

Keyser City Police said Paul Ervin Haggerty, 19, of RD 1, Keyser, who was driving the vehicle and a passenger, Ellsworth Haggerty, 14, also of RD 1, Keyser, escaped injuries after the car jumped a curb, knocked down a fence and rammed into the side of a house.

Police said the older Haggerty was traveling eastbound on Virginia Avenue when he lost control of his car. The house was owned by Piney LaRue, of Luke. Mrs. Robert Shank resides in the residence.

Police said approximately $300 property damage was caused.

Five Injured In Accident Near Keyser

Five persons were injured and considerable property damage caused Sunday when a "motorized house car" crashed on U.S. Route 50 near Keyser.

Hospitalized in the mishap were James G. Carr, 68, owner of the vehicle; George Sterling, 46; Joseph Biden, 45, and Vincent W. Vanderbraak, 41, all of Wilmington, Del., area.

Attaches at Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser reported the four men in "satisfactory" condition.

Biden sustained a fracture of the right clavical, while Vanderbraak suffered lacerations of his left ear, right leg, abrasions and contusions of the left hip and a possible shoulder injury. Sterling suffered a fractured and dislocated left ankle.

Another passenger in the vehicle, Gerald Vanderbraak, was treated at the hospital and released.

West Virginia State Police identified the driver as Lusby G. McCoy Jr., also of Wilmington, who was not injured.

Cpl. F. W. Armstrong and Trooper Robert Noebel of the Keyser detachment said the men were enroute home after attending the Kentucky Derby on Saturday.

Police said the vehicle, a 1958 model on a G&C chassis, was custom made, built like a house trailer and was valued at $50,000. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Investigating officers said it was a "miracle" all the men were not killed. The vehicle was east-bound on Allegany Front when the brakes failed on a sharp turn. The vehicle shot through guard rails, over an embankment and down a hillside.

Police said if the vehicle had traveled a few more feet it would have toppled into a hollow.

Police To Meet On Race Traffic

Supervisors of all shifts of the Police Department will meet with Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming Wednesday at 9 a. m. to prepare plans for handling traffic during Sunday's sports car races and the parade Saturday afternoon.

Fleming said all leaves and days off have been cancelled for the weekend and the same procedure as last year with possibly a few exceptions will be followed.

Traffic control during the big weekend here a year ago was described as outstanding.

Attending the Wednesday session will be Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney, Assistant Chief John E. Sherry, Lt. Raymond R. Johnston, Lt. Donald H. Smith and Lt. W. E. Shank.

Officer Praised By Fleming

James L. Bohn is resigning May 26 from the Cumberland Police Department to accept employment with the Montgomery County Police Department.

Council accepted the resignation yesterday and Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming said "it is with regret for Officer Bohn is one of our youngest and better young officers."

Bohn has been on the force two years and deserves a high recommendation," the commissioner added.

Fleming also paid tribute to other young officers who are joining the force saying "they are very good, conscientious" men.

Probationary Fireman

Donald L. Pulhalla was appointed a probationary member of the Fire Department by the Mayor and Council yesterday. The appointment is effective today.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I disagree with you. Your advice to be against everything and every "Had It Both Ways" was not only stuffy, but it was an injustice to unmarried people.

I say it requires MORE maturity to stay single than to get married. The self-supporting single woman must put up with all types of people in every walk of life. This takes as much maturity as putting up with interfering in-laws, squalling brats and stingy husbands.

As for marriage giving a woman "respectability" what did you mean by that crack? Why do you blithely assume that all single girls are tramping around? I'll bet there are more cheating wives than there are single girls running with married men.

You mentioned security. If married women are so secure why are so many of them working? Sense of belonging—Most husbands wouldn't let you "belong" if you didn't clean, cook, wash, iron, have babies and attend to their physical and emotional needs. A wife who fails on any count may find herself with a roaming husband.

You bet marriage isn't for everyone. In our office alone there are at least eight men and eleven women who are not married, and believe me, marriage is not for THEM! I think you ought to eat those words, Ann Landers.—G. G. DEAR G. G.: Gulp! Gulp! Gulp!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm the most miserable 16-year-old in the United States. I've studied classical piano since I was 8. My mother insists that I practice four hours every day even if it means getting up at 6 a. m. to put in two hours before school. I am invited to play at all sorts of conventions and club meetings. My mother goes ahead and accepts engagements for me without checking. I've had to cancel plans I've made because I didn't know my mother had booked me on a program.

When I complain she tells me I'm a silly goose, and that a person who is gifted should forget about boys until she's 21. Please help me! I'm beginning to hate the piano and my mother, too.

OUT OF TUNE
DEAR OUT: If your mother knew what she was doing to your personality and emotional health she'd cut it out. A young girl, even if she is talented, should be permitted to enjoy the fun of her teen-age years. The gifted person needs a social life and outside interests more than the ordinary one. Too often talented individuals become introverted and lopsided. Your mother should talk this over with an expert and Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Yankees And Angels Make Four-For-Two Player Swap

New Yorkers Get Clevenger And Bob Cerv

Ryne Duren, James, Thomas Among Four Headed For Coast

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels Monday announced a four-for-two player swap with the New York Yankees—outfielder Bob Cerv and pitcher Tex Clevenger of the Angels for pitcher Ryne Duren, pitcher Johnny James, outfielder Leroy Thomas and an unnamed outfielder of the Yanks.

The Angels, new entry in the American League long dominated by the New Yorkers, called it "our biggest and most important deal."

A spokesman said the Angel brass feels Duren will help the club more than Clevenger, formerly with the Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox.

Angels Sixth Deal

The deal, the Angels' sixth, is effective immediately.

General Manager Fred Haney of the Angels and his Yankee counterpart, Roy Hamer, concluded the negotiations here.

The Angel spokesman added that while they wanted Duren, "Clevenger was probably the key for the Yankees."

Duren, 31, is one of the fastest pitchers in the majors but has been troubled through his career by wildness. Duren had an 0-1 record with the Yanks this season.

Clevenger, 28, pitched in 12 of the Angels' first 19 games and had an earned run average of less than 2.00. He won two and lost one.

In Majors Ten Years

Cerv, 34, has spent his 10-year career in the majors shuttling back and forth between New York and Kansas City. He had his best season in 1958 when he hit .305 for Kansas City, driving in 104 runs and hitting 38 homers. He appeared in 18 games for Los Angeles, but was hitting only about .200.

James, 28-year-old right-hander, had a 4-40 earned run average with New York last year. He won five and lost one. He also won three and lost two last year with the Yankee farm club at Richmond.

Thomas, 25, who bats left-handed and throws right, hit .246 for Richmond last season. He has batted twice for the Yanks this year and had one hit.

Observers felt that Angel motives for the deal might include the need to acquire an additional starting pitcher—James. They badly need an additional capable starter.

Superb In Relief

Clevenger has pitched superbly in relief this year, but Duren has a more impressive relief record over the years.

The Yankees undoubtedly wanted Cerv to add strength to their bench. They lost him and Dale Long, also a pinch hitter last season, in the special American League player draft held last winter to stock the league's two new clubs—the Angels and the Senators.

In Kansas City, where the Yanks play the A's Tuesday night, Yankee Manager Ralph Houk said he intends to use Cerv "primarily as a pinch hitter and occasionally as a starting outfielder in the second game of double-headers and times like that. He fills our important need—a right-handed pinch hitter."

Penn-Fort Hill Alumni To Honor Letter Winners

The Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association will honor senior letter winners in all Fort Hill High School activities at a dinner today at 6:30 p. m., at St. John's Lutheran Church.

The guest speaker will be Harry I. Stegmayer, local attorney.

Remarks will be made by Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegheny County schools; Victor D. Heisey, principal, and David LaFon, assistant principal, of Fort Hill High School and Delbert Proudfoot, president of the alumni association.

Eugene Alexander, of the Class of 1955, will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Joseph Pelleri, Fort Hill graduate, now principal of Mt. Savage High School, will be the toastmaster.

Approximately 220 persons will attend the dinner, including 197 senior letter winners.

Keyser And Beall Dual Meet Today

Former Scout Dies

CLIFTON, N. J. (AP)—George P. Synnott, 58, for many years a scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team, died Monday in his home after a brief illness.

PLAYERS IN ANGELS-YANKEES TRADE—These are five of the six players in the two-for-four swap between the Los Angeles Angels and the New York Yankees. New York gets outfielder Bob Cerv and pitcher Tex Clevenger for pitchers Johnny James and Ryne Duren and outfielder Leroy Thomas, left to right. An as yet unnamed Yankee outfielder also will go to the Angels. The Angels, new American League team, called it "our biggest and most important deal" in the announcement made yesterday in Los Angeles. (AP Photofax)

Vikings Snap Moorefield's Streak, 7-3

Nelson Gains 5th Win Over Jackets

Petersburg's Vikings avenged their only loss of the season by snapping Moorefield High's four-game winning streak yesterday at Petersburg. The score was 7-3.

The Jackets had included the Vikings among their victims during the week, beating Petersburg 3-2 at Moorefield. But Ernie Nelson, who lost his only decision of the season to Dave Vance in that first meeting, came back to hurl a two-hitter yesterday in beating Vance.

The triumph was the seventh in eight starts in the Potomac Valley Conference for Coach Wayne Barr's Vikings. Moorefield, winner of seven games, dropped its third PVC decision.

Pitcher Nelson started his team on the right track by tripling home two runs in the first inning following base hits by John Koontz and Jack Boor.

In the second Petersburg added another tally on a base knock by Reggie Hedrick, an outfield error, and Koontz's two-base blow.

The Vikings wrapped up the decision by scoring four times in the fourth. Steve Bruce singled, Dave Shaffer was hit by a pitch and Hedrick singled to load the sacks. Bruce and Shaffer scored on a throwing error by the Moorefield catcher and Koontz walked. A two-run single by Boor concluded the scoring for the victors.

Moorefield, held hitless for five innings by Nelson who chalked up his fifth pitching victory, came to life in the sixth when Earl Simms walked and Wardney Sherman was hit by a pitched ball. Doug Yankee forced Simms at third for the second out, but Vance and Nelson forced Sherman through with the Jackets' only base hits—both singles—to drive in three runs.

Koontz, Boor and Hedrick each obtained two hits for Petersburg.

Long Road Trip Faces Detroit

Tigers Play Well Scheffing Says

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP)—Twenty-two games in the next 20 days will give the high-flying Detroit Tigers an opportunity to prove they belong in first place, and Manager Bob Scheffing says he is not worried about his young club.

Of the 22 games, 18 will be played on the road. The Tigers, leading the American League by 2½ games, will visit six cities on their longest road trip of the season.

"The boys are playing the same brand of baseball on the road as they are at home," said Scheffing as the Tigers enjoyed a day off after winning six out of seven on a week's road trip. "They're playing consistently sound baseball in every respect."

The manager still is avoiding any predictions about his club, but he does say he thinks the Tigers can avoid the collapse that has ruined other fine starts by the Detroit club.

"We have enough guys playing well to avoid a long slump, I think," he said. "If one or two guys were carrying us, then we might be in for quite a tumble. But everyone is playing well."

A two-run double by John Lowery coupled with a neat pitching performance by freshman southpaw Ralph Wilson were the highlights yesterday as Coach Joe Carter's Mt. Savage High School tossers defeated LaSalle High's Explorers in an Allegheny County High School League game at Stitzer Field by the score of 4-3.

The win gave the Indians a 2-2 record while the loss, LaSalle's third against many victories, dropped the Explorers into third place in the circuit's Eastern Division.

Mt. Savage scored two runs in the second inning by coupling hits by Griffey, Wisler and Wilson with an error. The Indians made it 4-0 in the fourth when Lowery drove in two runs with a timely double after Wisler singled and Wilson and Uhl drew bases on balls.

LaSalle tallied thrice in the fourth by grouping Green's walk and Long's double with fielder's choices by Clarke, Nolan and Shaffer.

Wilson kept LaSalle's seven hits well spaced, fanned four, issued four passes and made his season record 1-1. Bobby Green, who hurled the first 3½ innings for LaSalle, was tagged with the loss, his first against a single win. Joe Nolan finished on the mound for the Explorers.

Ronnie Speir of LaSalle and John Lowery and Howard Wisler of Mt. Savage collected two hits each.

Gangbuster Second In Aqueduct Race

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP)—Bruno Ferrari's Su Ka Wa, fleet son of Barbizon-Taveta, sped to victory in the 48th running of the $25,000 Youthful Stakes at Aqueduct today.

Su Ka Wa, winning his third race in as many starts, scored by two and a half lengths over Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Gangbuster, the favorite, who took the place by half a length over Elcee-H Stable's Ocala Breeze. Louis Lazare's Hildy's Lou was two lengths out of the money.

The time for the five furlongs was a brilliant :58 2/5, two fifths off Iron Rail's track record, the best time of the meeting.

Second choice in the wagering with the crowd of 30,428, Su Ka Wa returned mutuels of $7.30, $3.50 and $2.70. Gangbuster paid $2.60 and $2.40 and Ocala Breeze was $3.00 to show.

Su Ka Wa earned $16,575 net for Ferrari, Latrobe, Pa., home and highway builder, and jacked the colt's lifetime earnings to $25,850. Su Ka Wa also won the Dinner Stakes at Gulfstream Park.

Johnny Johnny Rotz had Su Ka Wa along the rail and out of trouble all the way. He wrestled the lead leaving the furlong pole and won going away.

Sentinels Copped Last 13; Campers Battle Bruce Here

Beall and Fort Hill, leaders of the Western and Eastern Divisions, respectively, in the Allegheny County High School Baseball League, will tangle in an important game today at 3:30 p. m., at Fort Hill Field.

Coach Enordo "Moose" Arnone's Mounties and Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinels are the only unbeaten teams in the league and they play only once during the regular season. If both schools finish one-two in either division they may clash again in the championship playoffs.

Beall holds decisions over Bruce 6-4, Flintstone 7-4, Mt. Savage 5-3, Valley 13-4 and LaSalle 13-7 and played an 8-8 tie with Mt. Savage. Fort Hill won over LaSalle 10-5, Allegheny 1-0, Flintstone 11-0, Valley 2-1 and Bruce 12-0.

Fort Hill has won 13 consecutive games from Beall since the opener of the 1954 series when Ronnie Rice of the Mounties beat Jesse Markley, 5-0. Wayne Murray of the Sentinels won the series finale that year, 6-4, to start Fort Hill's long winning streak. Four of the 13 wins scored by Major Cavanaugh's teams have been via the shutout route.

The Sentinels are undefeated in the league since early in the 1960 season and own an 18-game winning streak, including a decision over the Alumni this year.

Bruce High School's Bulldogs meet Allegheny's Campers today at Campobello at 4 p. m. It will mark the twenty-second meeting of these teams on the diamond, and Allegheny holds an 11-10 edge in victories.

Baltimorean Scored Here In 1960; Kolb, Hugas Returning

Vince Tamburo, of Baltimore, last year's G production national champion, will drive a new Series II Sunbeam Alpine in Class F production in one of the races at the Cumberland Sports Car Classic Sunday at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, according to Rootes Motors, Inc., importers of the Alpine.

The Tamburo car is being prepared by Kelo Auto Dynamics of Newark, Delaware.

The Alpine Tamburo will drive this year differs mainly from his 1960 "mount" in having a 1592cc engine instead of a 1494cc engine. This larger engine develops considerably more torque than the 1.5 liter mill.

Won Here Last Year

Tamburo took first place in last year's national Sports Car Club of America race at the airport driving his Alpine in Class G production. Vince won the first of the ten races on the program in 1960—a 40 minutes test—at an average speed of 59.6 miles per hour.

Kelo Auto Dynamics has attracted considerable attention in recent years with its exotic hybrid cars. This year, for instance, it is entering a Porsche powered Cooper S.C.C.A. modified class events and also has a Fiat powered Stanguelini Formula Junior ready for action.

Bob Holbert, of Warrington, Pa., and Roger Penske, Villanova, Pa., better known as the "Porsche Twins," are among the drivers expected to take part in Sunday's motor competition. Holbert finished second to Walter Hansen in the 1959 Vandegriff Memorial Trophy race and Penske was third in the same event last year back of Hansen and Gaston Andrey, of Framingham, Mass.

Kolb To Return

Charlie Kolb, of Silver Spring, Md., who drove Elvas to victory in three of the 10 races here last year, is expected to compete again as are Pittsburgh's Ed Hugas in a new V-6 Ferrari, Dr. M. R. J. Wyllie, Allison Park, Pa., in his new Lola and Briggs Cunningham and his stable of cars and drivers.

Director race activities which are manned by some 300 Cumberland Lions Club and Steel Cities members are Lions president William G. Barger and Clarence V. Martin. The latter is one of Pennsylvania's outstanding rally competitors and regional executives and is a native of Mason, Pa., where he operates an automobile distributorship.

Twenty To Man Gates

Arch M. Hutcheson, chairman of the admissions committee, has named 20 members of the Lions Club who will take charge at gates Nos. 1, 2 and 3 on Sunday. Paul Goldworthy will be foreman at Gate 1, Henry K. Duke at Gate 2 and Joseph A. Blake at Gate 3. They will report at 5 a. m.

Practice Schedule

The Cumberland Optimists and Jaycees of the Hot Stove League will play practice games Wednesday and Thursday at 5 p. m., at Penn Avenue Field.

The Old Exports of the Rec Softball League will practice today at 6 p. m. at Rolling Mill field. All players are requested to be present.

The Pirates of the Dapper Dan Little League will drill Wednesday at 4 p. m. at Taylor field and Saturday at 4 p. m. at Post field.

Cincinnati Makes Sudden "About Face"

Reds Are Second, Cop Eight Straight

By HAROLD HARRISON
CINCINNATI (AP) — Some one must have shouted "about face" to the Cincinnati Reds.

After losing eight in a row and dropping briefly in the National League cellar, the Reds now have put together an eight-game winning streak and moved into second place.

What brought about the sudden reversal of form?

"We're finally getting some hits when they are needed to go with the good pitching we have had," says Manager Fred Hutchinson, "during that losing streak we were getting good pitching, too, but there wasn't any hitting."

Hutchinson was quick to point out that the hitting isn't very robust but the safe wallpops have been coming with men on base.

One of the biggest helps has been the revival of Vada Pinson. When the losing streak ended Pinson was hitting under .150 in the last seven games, however, he has had 12 hits in 26 times at bat and boosted his average to .244.

How much has the acquisition of Don Blasingame from the San Francisco Giants helped in bringing the about face?

"He has been a big help," Hutchinson said. "He's still not hitting very good but he's been getting some timely hits. He has helped us defensively, of course, and he's a time base runner. Both he and (Bob) Schmidt have been doing a real good job."

Schmidt, a catcher, also was obtained from the Giants in a trade for Ed Bailey.

After they joined the club, the Reds dropped a pair of games to the Pittsburgh Pirates and then started on their winning streak.

Ed Donovan Will Coach N.Y. Knicks

Bonnies' Mentor Signs 2-Year Pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eddie Donovan of St. Bonaventure University, one of the nation's most successful young coaches, Monday signed a two-year contract to coach the professional New York Knickerbockers in a surprise move, replacing Carl Braun who was fired.

Ned Irish, Madison Square Garden Corporation basketball director, said that Donovan was the club's no. 1 choice.

"At no time did we consider any one else for the job," said Irish. "Of course, we had several others in mind if Donovan turned us down, but we wanted him above everyone else. We're certainly tickled to death to have him."

Donovan, whose teams won 139 games and lost 57 in eight seasons at St. Bonaventure, said he welcomed the chance to coach a professional team, and added that he didn't think the fact that he never played in the pros himself should prove a hindrance.

Despite his optimism, Donovan will be tackling one of the toughest jobs in the National Basketball Association. The Knicks, who finished last in the NBA's Eastern Division in four of the last five seasons, won only 21 games during their most recent campaign, and on paper, don't figure to be much better in the immediate future.

In announcing Braun's dismissal, Irish said, "In view of what happened to us, we had no other choice than to make a change. It wouldn't be fair to blame Carl for all our troubles, but when a club wins only 21 games it's time to make a change."

Donovan, who was a member of the 1950 U.S. Olympic basketball team, played for the New York Knickerbockers in 1947-48. He was a member of the 1950 U.S. Olympic basketball team, played for the New York Knickerbockers in 1947-48. He was a member of the 1950 U.S. Olympic basketball team, played for the New York Knickerbockers in 1947-48.

Four Runs In Eighth Decide Game; Wilson Whiffs 10, Wins 6th

Exploding for four runs in the eighth inning after trailing 2-1, Potomac State College registered its tenth victory of the campaign yesterday by beating Frostburg State Teachers College in the first game of their annual series yesterday at Keyser by the score of 5-3.

Coach John Fox's Catamounts tied the score in the eighth at 2-2 when Pete Fishback tripled after Ted Femi walked. Before the side was retired Potomac scored three more tallies to put the game on ice. The second run scored on an error and Dave Wilson sewed it up with a single that scored Funkhouser and Hawkins.

Lefty Dave Wilson recorded his sixth win of the season for the Catamounts, yielding only four hits over 8½ innings while firing the third strike past 10 batsmen. He has lost two games. Bill Funkhouser came on in the ninth to stop the Bobcats after they had scored one run.

Tom Hawkins and Wilson shared four of Potomac's eight hits. Geoff Whitmore smacked a pair of doubles to account for half of the hits credited to Frostburg State. George Kuhn went the route for the Bobcats and suffered his second defeat. The setback gave the Mountain City team a 2-3 record. Potomac is 10-5-1 for the campaign.

Potomac State plays Davis & Elkins at Keyser Thursday. Box score:

Light Vote Cast In Midland For Councilmen

Crowe, Rennie, Blair Elected

Only about 40 per cent of the registered voters in Midland went to the polls yesterday to elect three councilmen who will serve terms of one year each. There are 267 eligible voters and 105 ballots were cast. Three of these were discarded because they were improperly marked.

Only one incumbent, Alex Rennie, survived the lack of interest in the election. He finished in second place with an even 50 tallies. Wilbur Crowe, a newcomer, topped the ticket with 58 votes and John Blair, who had a term in council a few years ago, was third with 40 votes.

Melvin Loar, the only other incumbent seeking election, polled 38 votes and Eugene Mills, a newcomer, was also defeated, polling only 30 votes. Dewey Williams, the third incumbent did not seek re-election.

Unofficial Tally—

Wilbur Crowe	58
Alex Rennie (inc.)	50
John Blair	40
Melvin Loar (inc.)	38
Eugene Mills	30

Mr. Crowe, who has been active in the community for years, and is well known, is employed as a sexton at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Mr. Rennie is employed at the Celanese and Mr. Blair is employed at the Kelly Tire plant.

Mayor Lionel D. Baker is mayor of Midland, serving a four-year term and holdover councilmen are Harry Devlin, Donald Cook, and William Kroll.

Under a charter revision, the town's officials, after this year, will serve four-year terms. An election will be held every two years, with half the council being elected each time, and the mayor will be voted upon every other election.

An election will be necessary next year to complete the change-over.

Mayor Baker said last night there was not much interest in the campaign except by the newcomers who worked hard. He said the new council members will take office July 1.

Election judges included Edward Eisenbrou, Charles McGowan, Hazel Taylor and Leah Rennie. Old-fashioned paper ballots and ballot boxes were used in the election.

A-2 Polaris Gets ABL Boost In Good Flight

An A-2 Polaris missile, utilizing an Allegany Ballistics Laboratory rocket motor, was successfully flown yesterday from the Atlantic Missile Range at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The Navy's missile was launched from a flat pad and continued down range to strike a designated target area. Yesterday's flight test was the eighth successful firing for an ABL second-stage motor, which has been successful in six launchings from flat pads and from a tube on board a ship at sea.

Jeffrey A. Test

Representing ABL at the flight test was Wesley Jeffery of ABL's Polaris testing group.

The all-solid propellant A-2 Polaris missile has an increased range of more than 300 miles over the earlier A-1 version of the rocket.

Most of the missiles increase in range is attributed to the rocket motor developed at the Navy-owned, Hercules operated laboratory at Pinto.

The second stage motor uses a solid double-base propellant and is encased in a fiber glass chamber manufactured at Hercules' Rocky Hill, N. J. plant.

The concepts embodied in the advance Polaris motor are the results of years of research and development work conducted by Hercules' scientists at ABL.

Features Used

They first used these features in designing a high performance rocket motor for the Vanguard program. Out of this background came the knowledge of the combination of propulsion. Characteristics required for a unit specifically tailored for the second stage motor of the Polaris missile.

Working on research and development for an alternate motor for this program, the Hercules' team at ABL developed a motor which gives a greater range of operation and greater striking power than was formerly possible.

After completion of a rigorous test flying program the motor was selected as the second stage in the advanced A-2 Polaris missile.

Coroner's Jury Reaches Verdict In Area Death

Investigation Will Continue

The death of a 33-year-old Maysville, W. Va., area woman on Saturday was attributed to a gunshot wound or injuries by a person of persons unknown, a coroner's jury decided yesterday at Petersburg.

Mrs. Catherine R. Brogan of near Maysville, died Saturday morning in Potomac Valley Hospital at Keyser, where she was admitted Friday afternoon suffering from a gunshot wound of the left leg.

The Grant County coroner's jury was selected Sunday afternoon by Paul Geary, Petersburg, prosecuting attorney for that county.

The six-man jury viewed the body of Mrs. Brogan at a Petersburg funeral home and recessed until yesterday after taking testimony from Dr. M. H. Maxwell, Moorefield physician who attended her before she was taken to the hospital.

About 10 persons testified before the jury, according to Mr. Geary, who said authorities will continue an investigation into the woman's death.

Corporal G. H. Phillips of the Petersburg detachment of the West Virginia State Police said he and Sheriff John Groves of Grant County are conducting the investigation.

The shooting took place Friday at the home of a neighbor, where Mrs. Brogan was employed as a housekeeper. Residents in the neighborhood said they heard reports which sounded like gunshots about 10:30 a. m. Friday but the woman was not found until around 2 p. m.

Library Annex Remodeling Is Approved

Bookmobile Gets Warm Reception

The County Library trustees, at a meeting last night in the Court House, gave their approval to plans prepared for an addition to the library annex, a book elevator and other improvements to the building.

The plans and specifications will be referred to the Allegany County Commissioners with the suggestion that bids be sought, so the county library program can begin full and efficient operation.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, county librarian, reported that the bookmobile is operating on a regular schedule and said that scores of residents have telephoned and sent letters expressing their appreciation. Over 2,000 books are in circulation from the bookmobile and the list is steadily growing.

She explained, many adults and numerous school children throughout the county, who have not had access to books before, are making requests, and these are being filled as rapidly as possible. The program is working smoothly, she reported, and only one or two minor adjustments in scheduled stops have been necessary.

The board also gave its approval to painting the auditorium at the library and to some minor remodeling to increase the efficiency of the main section and reading room.

There was discussion on the problem of obtaining an experienced cataloguer, and Miss Walsh reported that she has contacted numerous colleges, universities, library centers and other agencies, in an effort to find an experienced person. The problem, she explained is salary. The board has not allocated enough funds to pay an experienced person, and it is almost impossible to employ someone with required knowledge and skill for the salary offered, she said.

The board has funds earmarked for book purchases, as the result of a substantial gift from a local patron. He has requested that the money be used for the purchase of books and has suggested that a technical library be established for use of persons in local industry.

The board authorized Miss Walsh to write to the larger industries and ask them to submit a list of technical volumes they require for the training and information of their people.

Peoples Ticket Ahead In Early Piedmont Count

Trend Indicates Mellor Is Mayor

Partial returns from the Piedmont, W. Va. town election late last night indicated the Citizens Ticket, headed by incumbent Mayor Rodney Baker was being defeated by a Peoples Ticket headed by Donald Mellor.

Only one member of the Citizens Ticket was in a favorable position to win the election. This was Sebastian Barbarito, who had been appointed to council to fill a vacancy following a resignation.

The partial returns show:

FOR MAYOR
Donald Mellor 334
Rodney Baker (inc) 260

FOR COUNCIL
B. Holmes Haywood 352
John Dennison 344
Sebastian Barbarito 293
Elmer J. Shaver 260
Roy M. Walker 256
Kingsley Skidmore 249

In the balloting yesterday, 860 voters of the town's 1,250 registered citizens went to the polls. At a late hour, when this tabulation was reported, 610 ballots had been counted, and the trend was toward election of Mellor for mayor, Dennison and Barbarito for council.

Mayor Baker has served the town as mayor for three two-year terms. He is a member of the faculty at Piedmont High School.

Mr. Barbarito was appointed to council November 17, 1959, following the resignation of Joseph Maybury, who resigned to accept the position of town clerk which was vacated when Ormond Ledlow retired because of ill health. Mr. Barbarito is manager of the Acme Food Market at Westernport.

Mr. Mellor, a former mayor, has served five years as head of the town's government. He is field engineer for the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Mr. Dennison is a well known photographer. Mr. Haywood is employed as a mechanic at the paper mill.

Mr. Skidmore is a billing supervisor at the paper mill and is completing six years as a councilman. Mr. Shaver is completing his first four year term as a councilman and is employed as manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at Piedmont.

Mr. Walker retired as assistant superintendent of the pulp department at the paper mill on March 1, 1960.

Under the town's election system, a mayor and three council members are to be elected. The two council candidates with the highest number of votes will serve four years and the council candidate receiving the third highest number of votes will serve two years.

The judges and clerks for the election included Leslie Albright, Mrs. Hiram Nogle, Mrs. William Keyes, Mrs. Fred Blackburn, and Mrs. Frank Fisher.

Holdover councilmen are James Bissett and Michael Lannon.

Hazelwood Bids Low On Airport

The George F. Hazelwood Company of this city was the apparent low bidder yesterday for construction of an airport at Deep Creek Lake at a bid opening by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

Another Allegany County contractor, Baughman Contracting Company, Inc., LaVale, was the only other bidder. Carl Schell of Kitzmiller, president of the Garrett County commissioners, said there was a possibility that another bid postmarked before 10 a. m. EST Monday might be received later.

Although specific figures were not available last night, it was understood that the Hazelwood bid, including all alternates, totaled about $285,000 compared with about $298,000 for the Baughman firm.

Hazelwood bid about $233,000 with a turn landing strip and about $255,000 with bituminous concrete. The field will be located on the White Face Farm off U.S. Route 219 some 15 miles north of Oakland and near the lake.

The bids were referred to Airway Engineers of Washington, D. C. for tabulation of all alternates. The Garrett County commissioners hope to have a recommendation from the engineers before their meeting next Monday.

Fifty per cent of the cost will be borne by the Federal government, 25 per cent by the state and 25 per cent by Garrett County.
